Nomination of Turner Chapel, AME Church	Fort Wayne – The congregation was established in the 19th century and the current church dates from 1917. The church has been a bedrock of the African-American community in Ft. Wayne for over 100 years. The church building has excellent integrity to convey the important role this congregation has played in the city.	Proposed	$6,000
Nomination of Swallow Robin Hall, Taylor University	Grant County – Swallow Robin Hall, one of the oldest buildings on the Taylor University campus, was designed by noted African American architect Samuel Plato. Plato, born in Waugh, Alabama, gained his architectural training through correspondence courses and had a successful 20 year career in Marion, Indiana. The building is used as a dormitory by Taylor University and, though updated, has sufficient integrity to convey Plato's mastery as a designer.	Proposed	$6,000
Nomination of Lick Creek African American Settlement Archaeological District	Orange County – Lick County was a pioneer community of free African Americans located within the Hoosier National Forest in Orange County, Indiana. In 1811, many of these free citizens traveled with abolitionist Quakers from North Carolina to escape racial prosecution. Settlers purchased land from the Government in this Upland region and Blacks and Whites successfully farmed the land side-by-side until the mid-1860's. By 1855 African Americans owned 1,600 acres of land. Ongoing research is demonstrating that this is one of the most important historical archaeological sites in Indiana associated with the African American community.	Proposed	$7,500
Nomination of Kickapoo-Mascouten & Wea Village	Tippecanoe County – These two village sites are notable for what investigations will reveal of the lives and cultures of the Natives who resided there and also for what they reveal of the early inter-actions between Europeans and Native Americans in what is now Indiana. Creating Historic Contexts to aid in identification and evaluation	Statewide – We propose a series of statewide historic context documents that will outline the important social, political, religious, and economic trends associated with the migration, settlement, and mobility of several important, but underrepresented groups that shaped Ohio history during the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries.	Proposed	$300,000 (total), $40,000-$70,000 each
Seminar of underrepresented groups	Statewide – We also propose a seminar to identify overarching themes common to all under-represented groups and themes and concentrations of resources specific to the groups listed above. We will invite scholars, community leaders, and group advocates with the goal of securing guidance for the preparation of historic contexts, surveys, and NRHP nominations.	Proposed	$20,000
Nominations of individual buildings and historic districts/landscapes	Statewide – We propose the preparation of nominations to the National Register of Historic Places for individual buildings and historic districts/landscapes reflecting significant events, individuals, or broad patterns of history associated with these groups.	Proposed	$10,000 to $25,000 per nomination
AmeriCorps Community Survey project	Cleveland – An AmeriCorps member, hosted by the Cleveland Restoration Society with support from the Ohio Historic Preservation Office, is surveying properties	Ongoing	$18,000

AmeriCorps Community Survey project	Columbus - An AmeriCorps member, hosted by the Columbus landmarks Foundation with support from the Ohio Historic Preservation Office, is continuing his research and documentation of properties associated with a Columbus African-American architect practicing in the mid-century period.	Ongoing	$18,000
Oklahoma
Survey of Women in Oklahoma History	Statewide – The project will be a statewide, intensive level survey to identify, document, and evaluate properties associated with women of all cultures who have made significant contributions to the history of Oklahoma. All data collected will be incorporated into our inventory (hard copy and online), and the project report will be made available on our website. Following completion of the survey and based on its results, we will begin the nomination of eligible properties to the National Register of Historic Places.	Proposed	$250,000 (Based on previous statewide thematic surveys, we estimate the need for $250,000 from the HPF, assuming that we will have to provide a 40% match for this amount).

Architectural/Historic Survey of Oklahoma's Rosenwald Schools	44 Oklahoma Counties – The Oklahoma SHPO's in-house staff began work on this project to identify, document, and evaluate the schools constructed in Oklahoma under the Rosenwald school program which built educational facilities for African-American children. The initial work included obtaining a list of all schools constructed and the locational information available at Fisk University. There were 198 such schools built across 44 of Oklahoma's 77 counties. Additionally, we developed and published a context on the Rosenwald program. Because locational information is vague at best, field checking each location to confirm whether or not the buildings exist is time consuming. In-house staff carries out this work as their time permits, and over the last three years, approximately one-third of the locations have been checked. This project would allow us to complete the survey work, write the report, and begin nominating eligible properties to the National Register of Historic Places.	About 1/3 complete	$100,000 (We estimate that with $100,000 from the HPF plus the required 40% match, this project could be completed in two years).
Survey of Oklahoma's Archeological Resources	Statewide – The Oklahoma SHPO will continue its partnership with the Oklahoma Archeological Survey, University of Oklahoma to continue the identification and documentation of archeological resources statewide. This partnership began c.a. 1977 and continues with one to three survey projects (usually of a stream drainage) per year. Our partner provides the nonfederal matching share. Sites recorded are added to the statewide inventory of archeological sites, a primary resource for federal agencies and others carrying out undertakings in Oklahoma.	Ongoing	$50,000 per year (We can continue our existing program with $50,000 per year from the HPF plus the nonfederal match provided by the Oklahoma Archeological Survey).
Oregon
Survey of women's history sites in Oregon	Statewide – Multi-phase effort to survey and prepare historic contexts and multiple property National Register nominations for sites related to women's history in Oregon. Builds on efforts of the 2012 centennial commemoration of woman suffrage in Oregon.	Proposed	$100,000-125,000 (3-5 years)

• Attachment 1

Survey of African American Sites in Oregon	Statewide – Multi-phase effort to survey and prepare historic contexts and multiple property National Register nominations for sites related to African American history in Oregon. Builds on 1991 inventory and study of Portland's Albina neighborhood.	Proposed	$100,000-125,000 (3-5 years)
Survey of Latino Sites in Oregon	Statewide – Multi-phase effort to survey and prepare historic contexts and multiple property National Register nominations for sites related to Latino history in Oregon. In working with the Latino-focused Woodburn Main Street program, we realized that we have far too little information on this population group in Oregon.	Proposed	$100,000-125,000 (3-5 years)
Survey of Japanese and Japanese-American Sites in the Hood River Valley	Hood River Valley – Multi-phase effort to survey and prepare historic contexts and multiple property National Register nominations for sites related to Japanese/Japanese-Americans in the Hood River Valley. This area has very strong potential as a cultural landscape, one shaped heavily by Japanese Americans.	Proposed	$75,000-$100,000 (3-5 years)
Pennsylvania
Statewide initiative on Preserving Pennsylvania's African American Heritage	Statewide – Historic Context for African American Heritage in PA.	Ongoing	TBD
Statewide Initiative on Preserving Pennsylvania's African American Heritage	Statewide – To create a website on African American Heritage in PA.	Ongoing	TBD

Elementary School Program about African Americans in the county during the 19th and 20th centuries	For develop content for curriculum and train interpreter in the person of local woman, Sarah Molson, second wife of W. Molson, 43rd USSCT Infantry, Company B.	Ongoing	TBD
Century Farm African American documentation	Washington Township – To document a century farm in rural Washington Township that was home to the only African American family Living in the Local School district during the Civil Rights Movement.	Ongoing	TBD

	The goals is to create a program on the African American Experience in Erie County and prepare a driving tour print narrative that would lead visitors to sites of interest throughout the county.
Survey and archive inventory on Abolitionist Robert Purvis	Philadelphia – Survey and create a descriptive inventory of extant archival records relating to Byberry Hall and its builder, African American Abolitionist Robert Purvis (1810-1898); advise the Trustees on preservation of their archival materials that relate to Purvis and Byberry Hall; and advise the Trustees on options for preserving and promoting Byberry Hall.	Ongoing	TBD
Inventory of African American related places, Harrisburg	Harrisburg – Create an inventory of historic buildings associated with African-American congregations located in Harrisburg.	Ongoing	TBD
Research guide for African American Collection,	Philadelphia – To create a research guide to the African American collection in the Library Company of Philadelphia to facilitate access to this material for non-specialists.	Ongoing	TBD

Training and Planning for Mt. Zion AME Church.	Columbia, PA – Mt. Zion AME Church.	Ongoing	TBD
The Changing Face of Broad Street – Chronicling the Histories of South Providence’s “Main Street”	Harrisburg – Empower group of African-American Harrisburg congregations to be agents of neighborhood preservation.	Ongoing	TBD
Rhode Island
Research of the Changing Face of Broad Street – Chronicling the Histories of South Providence’s “Main Street”	This project will use oral history and Providence – documentary research to study how Broad Street has served as the commercial main street of a succession of minority communities over the past century. This would be a collaborative effort between RISHPO, the Brown University Public Humanities Program and local community.	Proposed	$100,000

Study of the final report of African-Americans in Providence	Providence – This project will progress from an existing preliminary study to the completion of a survey report that would be the companion to the RIHP&HC's African-Americans in Newport (1998). This report would provide a full historical context for Providence's African-American community, inventorying its significant events, personages, places and buildings. This study, like the preliminary study, would be undertaken in partnership with the Rhode Island Black Heritage Society.	Proposed	$100,000
Survey of Tribal Homelands, English Plantations and King Philip's War in Rhode Island	Statewide – This project utilizes research in archival records, Tribal history and archaeology to examine the physical and cultural geography of Rhode Island in the decades between initial English colonization in 1636 and the climactic events of King Philip's War, 1675-1676. Building upon the currently ongoing study, The Battles At Nipsachuck , the study would identify and locate Tribal locales, villages and other significant places to assemble a more detailed understanding of composition and character of the Native American cultural landscape in the 17 th century. This study, like the Nipsachuck study, would be undertaken in partnership with the Narragansett Indian Tribal Historic Preservation Office.	Proposed	$100,000
South Carolina
African American Historic Places in South Carolina Web-Based Inventory	Statewide – For 10+ years, the SC SHPO has updated and published the booklet African American Historic Places in South Carolina. It is out of date almost as soon as it is printed, because sites are continually added through new National Register listings or historical markers. Each new edition requires the book to be redesigned and with the growing number of sites this becomes a larger and larger task as time passes. Finally the costs associated with printing new editions increases. The goal of this project is to convert the publication to a web-based product that could be continuously updated and is searchable. We would also like to explore ways to	Ongoing	$15,000 - $20,000 (Request that additional funds not require a 60:40 match. The SHPO does not have additional state funding to provide match for additional federal funds) make it interactive through the use of Google maps, uploading photographs, etc, and to add features such as travel itineraries.

Diversity Internship Fund	Statewide – This project would fund up to five summer graduate student internships at local, regional and/or statewide organizations that focus on recognizing the history of under-represented groups by completing projects that fall under the National Historic Preservation Act umbrella. These would include completing surveys of historic resources associated with an under-represented group, developing National Register nomination(s), researching and writing a historic context, or other related projects. This program would a) engage local, regional and statewide organizations in recognizing and documenting this area of history; b) would engage young scholars of diverse backgrounds, raising awareness and providing valuable work experience; and c) add new information to the statewide inventory and new National Register listings.	Proposed	$25,000 / year
Development of Historic Context(s) for Interpretation of Gullah Culture in Archaeology	Coastal SC Counties – This project would create a historic context for Gullah culture archaeology and then apply the context to existing artifact collections and reports. The state has a wealth of archaeological sites and associated archaeological collections that could be re-analyzed within this new framework. The resulting in new interpretations could be used in public education and to create a database to allow comparisons across states in the Gullah Geechee Cultural Heritage Corridor.	Proposed	$100,000 (Request that additional funds not require a 60:40 match. The SHPO does not have additional state funding to provide match for additional federal funds)
South Dakota
Study of Sioux Falls Ethnographic	Minnehaha County – Conduct an ethnographic study of the changing ethnic populations in the historic neighborhoods of Sioux Falls. This would expand upon a book the SD SHPO helped fund that will be released in September 2012 by the South	Proposed	$50,000 estimate

	Dakota State Historical Society Press called "North of Twelfth Street: The Changing Face of Sioux Falls Neighborhoods." [Hispanic; more recent African immigrant groups (Sudanese, Somali, etc.); and others]
TCP training	Multiple Cities – Work with THPOs to provide training on TCPs to fed, state, and local agencies in SD.	Proposed	$12,000 estimate
Features Survey of Prehistoric Mortuary	Multiple Counties – Record prehistoric mortuary features (burial mounds and sites) to ensure they are considered in the planning of any future developments.	Ongoing	$50,000 estimate
Tennessee
Survey and Report of the African American Rosenwald schools thorough Tennessee	The Tennessee Historical Commission has funded two years of grants to produce a survey of the state's Rosenwald Schools, which served African-American schoolchildren. We have contracted with the Tennessee Division of Archaeology, and those schools no longer extant are being recorded as archaeological sites.	On going	$35,000
Texas
Survey of South Texas	South Texas – Cultural resource survey of South Texas.	Proposed	$250,000
Survey of West Side	San Antonio – Survey architectural resources in West Side neighborhood.	Proposed	$150,000
Survey and designation of Rosenwald Schools	Statewide – Over 500 Rosenwald Schools were built in Texas. Over 400 of those remain unidentified/missing. A statewide survey would be conducted, leading to the development of National Register nominations.	Proposed	$200,000
Investigation of African American Archeology in Texas, Phase II	Statewide – Archeological investigations of a variety of property types associated with African Americans in Texas including a freedman's farmstead, a freedman's manufacturing site, a Buffalo Soldier encampment, an urban freedman's community, an African American cemetery, an early black college, and a Rosenwald School.	Proposed	$150,000
Vermont

Survey & Inventory African American settlements, burial grounds, and other places	Statewide – Working with CLG communities and the more than 150 local historical societies, begin to survey and document buildings, archeological sites, and other places of past or present importance to African American and Native American communities. To the extent possible through this grassroots initiative, survey and document other places important to under-represented people (women, ethnic minorities, others). [All of VT's under-represented people, but initial focus on African American and 19th and 20th century Native American places]	Proposed	$70,000
Acknowledging VT's mentally ill community	Statewide – The historic Waterbury State Office Complex (the former state hospital for the mentally ill) was damaged by Irene. 1,200 employees were relocated and the VT State Mental Hospital and its patients had to be moved elsewhere. The VT State Review Board (VT Advisory Council on Historic Preservation) recommends the proposed, new Waterbury State Office complex find an appropriate venue to acknowledge this under-served community and interpret how VT has served it.	Proposed	$50,000
Journey's End: Daisy Turner Homestead Site Project	Grafton (Windham County) – Journey's End is a rare and exceptional African American historic and archeological district hidden away in the hills of Vermont. The project will restore and interpret the site. An agreement has been executed with the owner and State of VT to transfer the property to an appropriate nonprofit for interpretation as a site where an escaped slave settled. This site is well documented through an oral history project, conducted by the VT Folk life Center, with the slave's daughter, Daisy. She lived to be 104 years old.	Ongoing.	$400,000
Linking Past and Present Native American communities through the VT Archeology Heritage Center	Statewide – Integrate VT's Native American communities into the new VT Archeology Heritage Center through collaborative exhibits and programming.	Ongoing.	$30,000
Virginia

Freedman and Contraband Marker Trail-Historic Highway Marker Series	Statewide – Planned Project: Dovetailing with the National Trust and National Park Service projects, Virginia would like to mark the key "freedmen" and "contraband" sites with a series of historic highway markers. This department has already prepared markers for Arlington's Freedmen's Village, and the Contraband Decision at Fort Monroe, but many more sites are being revealed. The trail could be as many as 20-25 markers. DHR would organize as many public celebrations as possible for marker dedications and DHR would feature a webpage of history and mapping of the trail.	Proposed	$55,000 to $65,000
International Labor Force in Virginia – Survey and Multiple Property Document	Statewide – Planned Project: The goal of this project would be to develop a context to explore the many foreign cultures that came to Virginia from settlement period (Africans, Irish, Polish and Huguenots in Colonial period for example) through to the 20th century (Eastern Europeans in mining regions, Irish in factories and rail construction, and Latino Americans in farming areas). Some of these resources are documented, but many need field survey, both architectural and archaeological (confirmation of many of the leads that exist in DHR records). This would be ground breaking work resulting in an MDP to encourage register nominations, a published report, and a DHR webpage with mapping and historic graphics. Links and additional web resources would be featured for researching family roots.	Proposed	$80,000-$110,000
Survey of Virginia Indian Contact Period Sites	Eastern Virginia – Planned Project: This project would identify Virginia Indian cultural sites, including villages associated with Powhatan and Pocahontas, which were documented at the time of first Virginia settlement of Europeans (English and Spanish c. 1500-c. 1700). A great deal of recent scholarship could be used to conduct field survey to identify and field test sites for definite location and integrity. Many of these sites have been projected from historic records but locations remain unconfirmed. The findings would be	Proposed	$250,000

	published in a book and highlighted on DHR WebPages with extensive graphics that show artifacts, general mapping, and period documents.
Emancipation to Civil Rights Thematic Study-Multiple Property Document (MPD)	Statewide – Planned Project: This project would cover history and identification of African American resources, from archaeological sites to the built environment (churches, schools, lodges, key commercial and recreational sites, and military related) from 1863 to the 1970s. An MPD would encourage designation; field work would confirm surviving resources, and a featured educational DHR web page would display the findings, the history, and examples of sites; it would also use web resources to encourage the public to register and place historic highway markers at key sites. The project would involve public outreach to assist in identification and encouragement of stewardship of the resources. As one of the primary places of early African-American heritage, this work would be useful to all Americans, well beyond the state's boundaries.	Proposed	$80,000-$110,000
The Foundations of Historic Preservation in Virginia--Survey and Multiple Property Document	Statewide – Planned Project: The history of historic preservation in Virginia (and the US) goes back to the fight to save Mount Vernon and Ann Pamela Cunningham's critical participation in that effort creating the first nationwide preservation campaign 1850s. Traditionally women have been the backbone of Virginia's historic preservation movement, and the broader and significant story of the critical work and patronage of women in historic preservation is little known. The project goal would be to identify the women who led the historic preservation movement from early years to the present and survey the resources associated with their efforts. Many of the resources saved by their work are registered, but the nominations make no mention of the 20th-century story of preservation and amending nominations with Criteria A (women's history) and/or B	Proposed	$50,000-$75,000

	(significant person) significance would be part of the scope of this project. The products would include a published report, a featured web page, and a celebration poster.
Archaeology Resource Kits (ARKs)	Statewide – Ongoing Educational Initiative: Within existing DHR programs, for teacher use in classrooms, DHR has created two sets of Archaeology Resource Kits (ARKs) that include lesson plans and reproductions of artifacts; one set of ARKs pertain to Virginia Indian prehistory, and another set deals with African American history in Virginia. These ARKs have proved extremely popular and have been used by thousands of students in Virginia classrooms since their inception and availability. As the ARKS focusing on prehistory are more than 20 years old, their mission and content especially require review and upgrade.	Ongoing	$10,000
Publication Programs	Statewide – Ongoing DHR educational efforts have also produced a popular book (published in cooperation with the University of Virginia Press), First People: The Early Indians of Virginia . Published originally in 1992, the book was revised and issued as a second edition in 2006; it remains a steady backlist seller with the UVA Press. The former annual magazine of the Virginia Dept. of Historic Resources Notes on Virginia highlighted the listings of historic sites associated with under-represented cultures and also featured articles showcasing African American and Native American heritage. DHR had begun to publish color graphics in the last few issues. After the magazine was discontinued (because of budget constraints), select sites affiliated with black history, women's history, and other minorities have been profiled online through slideshows. The journal had a circulation of around 3000. DHR is now working to revive the magazine as an e-publication with print-on-demand capabilities. We currently have in development our first e-publication, an archaeology report about the two oldest	Ongoing; however, publication of Notes on Virginia was suspended when budget reductions were implemented in 2009. State Highway Marker Program: African American, Native American, Women, Jewish, Polish, French	Statewide – Ongoing since 2002, and utilizing multiple Transportation Enhancement Grants (TEA), this initiative has created between 150 and 200 new historical highway markers that celebrate multiple cultures and women. The initiative followed a TEA-funded effort to remove markers with erroneous history and language offensive to Native Americans. [Ongoing since 2002; current phase up through 2014.	$1.4 million in TEA Grants
State and National Register Listing: African American, Native American, Quakers, Italians, Poles, Irish, Czechs, Mennonites, and Women	Statewide – Ongoing since 2002, working through regular DHR programs, staff has made under-represented cultural resources a high priority for the Virginia Landmarks Register and the National Register. Staff wrote nominations and worked with owners closely. For instance, during the period 2002 to 2011, there were 105 new listings for African American sites.	The effort is ongoing, but with staff reductions, the level of listing is unsustainable and will require funding to extend the project.	TBD
Chippokes Plantation State Park	Surry County – Ongoing projects: Archaeology Field Schools that have yielded information (artifacts) deepening scholarly understanding of the contributions of Anglo, African, and Native Americans to the formation and evolution of what emerged as a Virginian culture. Currently, DHR also has partnered with State Parks to produce a structure report for one of the most intact slave quarters in the state--and a register nomination for this quarter and the associated Walnut Valley Plantation House (all located within the Chippokes Plantation State Park).	Ongoing	Current phase of projects: $15,000
Register Program Focus on Women's Historic Resources	Statewide – Ongoing focus: Twenty-two sites affiliated with women's history have been listed since 2002, such as the Crenshaw House in Richmond where the founding meeting of the Equal Suffrage League (now the League of Women Voters) took place in 1909. (A historic highway	Ongoing	SHPO staff, but due to staff reductions, additional funding may be required.

	marker was dedicated at Crenshaw House in 2012).
Sea Level Rise Initiative	Eastern Shore & Tidewater: Due to the effects of sea level rise and storm systems, DHR has focused its archaeological field schools and public outreach on testing threatened sites on the Eastern Shore and Chesapeake Bay in general. Last spring, a Virginia Indian shell midden site on Savage Neck in Northampton County was eroding into the bay. Through a DHR-sponsored excavation, shell-tempered ceramics on the site were dated to 1000 BC, the earliest date for such pottery in eastern North America. This winter, an exposed burial associated with a 19 th -century cemetery on Tangier Island was recovered as it was eroding into the bay. Other burials on the island will be removed archaeologically this spring. Also this spring, a survey recording threatened sites on the Eastern Shore will be held involving ca. 50 volunteers, concentrating on Northampton County. The Pitts Neck Plantation site in Accomack County will also be tested due to potential impacts from private road construction. The site is located in proximity to the 17th century Indian town of Wighcowocomoco, one of the Chief House sites recorded on John Smith's map of 1612.	Ongoing	TBD
Washington
Washington Latino Heritage MPD, Survey & NR Multiple Property Nomination	Statewide – Research and write an NPS multiple property documentation form focusing on Latino history in Washington state from contact to the present. Following completion of the MPD, complete a comprehensive survey & inventory of sites related to the theme with a geographic focus on Mid-Columbia River basin counties. Final phase to be a National Register nomination of eligible properties. Selection of properties to be nominated will be based on data from the MPD and inventory products.	Proposed	$120,000
African American Heritage Update, Survey & NR Multiple	Statewide – Update Mumford's Black Heritage Survey (1987) followed by a comprehensive survey & inventory of sites	Proposed	$110,000

Property nomination	related to the context with a geographic focus on historic population concentrations of African Americans in the state. Final phase will be a National Register nomination of eligible properties derived from data from the context document and inventory.
Asian American Historic Context update, Survey and NR Multiple Property nomination	Statewide – Review and update Dubrow's Asian American context document followed by a comprehensive survey & inventory of sites related to the context with a geographic focus on historic population concentrations of Asian Americans in the state. The final phase will be a National Register nomination of eligible properties derived from data from the context document update and inventory.	Proposed	$110,00
West Virginia
Romney School for the Deaf and Blind	Hampshire County – Founded in 1870, the school's earliest buildings are deteriorated; listing will assist in funding eligibility.	Proposed	$15,000
Minority Contributions to Coal Heritage	National Coal Heritage Area Counties – Using the existing context and survey information from Coal Heritage Area efforts, focus on the specific contributions of African Americans in the southern coal counties.	Proposed	$55,000
Riverside School and Segregated Education	Elkins – Assist with rehabilitation efforts and development of educational programs associated with African American education in Randolph County.	Proposed	$600,000
Wisconsin
Survey of Wisconsin Black and Hispanic Agricultural Settlement	Statewide – This project will survey the resources associated with rural Black and Hispanic agricultural settlements in Wisconsin from the mid nineteenth century through the mid twentieth century. For rural Black settlements, a 1959 survey of Black families in rural Wisconsin identified families in 29 counties, with a concentration in Vernon and Grant counties. For rural Hispanic settlements, the entire state will be surveyed with emphasis on the 51 counties that housed canneries as of 1953. Properties may include homes, churches, schools, migrant housing complexes, and properties	Proposed	$200,000 associated with the Bracero program, farm labor, immigrant aid, or social reform organizations. This project will result in the identification and nomination of eligible properties, the erection of historic markers for important sites where the building is no longer extant or is part of a listed historic district, and the preparation of a web component linking National Register properties with a larger narrative.

Urban Survey of Wisconsin Blacks and Hispanics	Statewide – This project will document urban properties associated with Blacks and Hispanics in Wisconsin. Concentrations of Blacks can be found in the urban areas of Madison, Janesville, Beloit, and Racine. By using population demographic maps, neighborhoods to survey in these communities, such as Milwaukee’s “Inner Core” and Madison’s “Greenbush,” will be studied. Properties may include residences, churches, schools, cultural, commercial, and industrial buildings. The project will look at important social movements, such as abolition, the Great Migration, voting rights, and civil rights, as well as themes of wartime labor shortages and segregation. Notable community leaders and activists will be documented. This project will result in the identification and nomination of eligible properties, the erection of historic markers for important sites where the building is no longer extant or is part of a listed historic district, and the preparation of a web component linking National Register properties with a larger narrative.	Proposed	$200,000
Wisconsin Women’s Social and Political Movements	Statewide – This project will examine the major institutions and organizations in Wisconsin associated with women’s social and political movements and their leaders. A statewide survey will identify the places associated with these organizations, such as women’s clubs and women’s fraternal groups, and of buildings linked to social and political movements in which women played an active role, such as the Temperance and Suffrage movements. Properties may include club houses,	Proposed	$263,000

The study will result in the identification and nomination of eligible properties; the erection of historic markers for important sites where the building is no longer extant or is part of a listed historic district; and the preparation of a web component linking National Register properties within a larger narrative.
Notable Wisconsin Women	Statewide – This project will identify and document properties associated with Wisconsin women who have been leaders in their professions and who have made a significant contribution to the history of their community, the state, or the nation. The study will focus on noted leaders in their fields, including science and medicine, literature and the arts, commerce, and education. Beginning with a literature search of published sources, the project will result in the identification and nomination of eligible properties; the erection of historic markers when properties associated with historically important women are no longer extant or are included within earlier designated historic districts; and the preparation of a web component linking National Register properties within a larger narrative.	Proposed	$98,000
